

The secret of getting ahead is getting started. ~Sally Berger

Grass-roots effort brings global celebration to Rochester

Sheila Rayam
Female Audience Editor

Jamie Columbus encountered phenomenal women during her travels to 32 countries — women whose spirit she has tried to capture through her art.

But the painter and photographer wanted to do more to honor those women.

"I have for many years dreamt of paying tribute to the spirit, strength and perseverance of the courageous women I have photographed and painted in Africa, Asia, South America and the Middle East," says Columbus of Brighton. "I have always felt fulfilled and enriched by multicultural environments and want to share that experience and make people aware of the diversity in our hometown."

In March, Columbus' dream is set to become a reality with the area's first Rochester International Women's Day Celebration, open to the public, at Rochester Contemporary Art Center.

International Women's Day, which has been celebrated since the early 1900s, is a global day of inspiration and recognition of the accomplishments of women. International Women's Day is an official holiday in 14 countries.

A committee of 20 local women, representing numerous ethnic backgrounds, has put together the event featuring various cuisines, music and dance, blessings from diverse spiritual leaders, a Peace Offering Ceremony conducted by 5-year-old girls from Trinity Montessori School and more.

"I think it's important for us to celebrate the contributions that women make and also to improve the situation for women," says Rhona Genzel, director of the English Language Center at Rochester Institute of Technology.

Along with the activities planned for the event, guests will have the opportunity to view Columbus' "Earth Tones Woman" at Rochester Contemporary Art Center.

The installation is a mosaic of photographs and oil pastels of tribal women that Columbus met during her many trips. "Earth Tones Woman" is scheduled to open Feb. 6 and run through March 15.

Here at home, members of the Rochester International Women's Day committee hope the event will be a "virtual passport" to women from other countries as well as a chance to experience and learn more about different cultures locally.

"I'm hoping people will walk away with a good feeling about their experience and a better understanding of different cultures," says Columbus, who adds that the day should be fun, too.

Anyone interested in volunteering to help with Rochester International Women's Day can contact Columbus at Jamie@JamieColumbus.com. The committee also hopes to become community partners with grassroots organizations, cultural groups and corporations to help Rochester International Women's Day grow.

"The events that day are just really the starting point for the celebration," says committee member Judith Weinstein, executive director of Rochester International Council. "We're hoping to have many other events going on, sponsored by other organizations during the month surrounding International Women's Day."

For more information about Rochester International Women's Day, go to www.RIWD.org.

Timothy J. Toal
Members of the Rochester International Women's Day Planning Committee 2008-2009 are from left to right (back row): Trish Amish, Deborah Hughs, Rhona Genzel, Nancy Gong, Joan Gerrity and Judy Weinstein. Bottom row: Aimee Senise Bohn, Jannet Le CLair, Anu Shah, Jamie Columbus, Paulette Anderson, Joan Zinn, Kim Pham

Honoring women home and abroad

The first Rochester International Women's Day Celebration is scheduled for 1 to 3:30 p.m. March 8 at Rochester Contemporary Art Center, 137 East Ave. Activities will include ethnic food, music and dance. Admission is free. For more information, go to www.RIWD.org.

Things to do

• All Events • Submit an event

FRI 2 SAT 3 SUN 4 MON 5 TUE 6 WED 7 THU 8

WEATHER

31°F
Cloudy
Your forecast

Subverting the Sacred: The Face of Lenin
Bristol Mountain Winter Resort
John Wood: On the Edge of Clear Meaning

More events for today

Submit an event

ADVERTISEMENT

Partners: Jobs: CareerBuilder.com Cars: Cars.com Apartments: Apartments.com Shopping: ShopLocal.com

Home | Getting ahead | Style | Home/life | Health | Forums

Copyright ©2008 Rochester Democrat & Chronicle. All rights reserved.

Mailing Address: 55 Exchange Boulevard | Rochester, New York 14614 | (585) 232-7100

Use of this site signifies your agreement to the Terms of Service and Privacy Policy/Your California Privacy Rights, updated March 2007.